During the COVID-19 crisis hip staff has been working remotely to ensure that people with disabilities have the appropriate services to withstand the challenges brought on by remaining in their homes. Thanks to the CARES Act we have been given the opportunity to expand our services to ensure that people with disabilities can continue to remain independent in their communities. In addition to the programs listed below our Center for Independent Living can provide services to:

- Improve access to information and connection to community through enhanced technology.
- Ensure that people who need assistance with food, supplies and equipment receive the necessary services.
- Maintain health and safety at home through the provision of self-monitoring devices (blood pressure monitors), window unit air conditioners, microwaves, PT equipment, etc.
- Assist people with training for the use of new technology and assistive devices.
- Establish new lines of communication for information and referral, peer support and advocacy.

We recognize that our delivery of services will be slightly different from our usual in-person meetings, but we are here to respond to your specific needs.
